Calcium: Why You Need It

If you're like most Americans, you probably don't get enough of this mineral to keep your bones healthy. Calcium makes your bones hard and dense. If your serum calcium levels are too low, your body takes it from your bones. Too much loss may lead to osteoporosis, or brittle bone disease. That raises your chances for falls and broken bones.

Good food sources include:

- 1 cup milk
- 1 cup plain low-fat yogurt
- 1.5 oz of hard cheese
- 1 cup baked beans
- 3 ounces canned salmon with edible bones
- Leafy greens: collards, bok choy, kale
